Control Power Concepts (CPC) has been a huge help to me whenever it comes the Arc-Flash Coordination Studies or on-site testing. For studies, the time-frame on receiving these after you submit your information is roughly two weeks. Their power engineers are willing to take the time and break down their results with you so that you fully understand what problem(s) you may have and the best course of action to resolving the issue(s). For on-site visits and testing, they are responsive and are usually able to make it happen when you are in a pinch.
